BLOCO 2 • GRAMMAR present continuous, perguntas e respostas curtas

10. PRESENT CONTINUOUS o painel bilíngue

AFFIRMATIVE subject + is/are + verb-ING

EN We use the present continuous to talk about what is happening now. One animal takes is. Two or more animals take are.

PT Usamos o present continuous para falar do que está acontecendo agora. Um animal pede is. Dois ou mais pedem are.

► The shark is swimming. • The dolphins are jumping.

NEGATIVE subject + isn't/aren't + verb-ING

EN To make it negative, just add not to is or are. We almost always use the short form.

PT Para deixar negativo, é só juntar not ao is ou ao are. Quase sempre usamos a forma curta.

► It isn't walking. • They aren't jumping.

SPELLING -e → -ing • consoante dobrada

EN Verbs ending in -e lose the e: hide > hiding. Short verbs ending in one vowel + one consonant double it: swim > swimming.

PT Verbos terminados em -e perdem o e: hide > hiding. Verbos curtos com uma vogal + uma consoante dobram a consoante: swim > swimming.

► make > making • hide > hiding • swim > swimming • eat > eating

COMMON ERROR • ERRO CLÁSSICO

X ~~The shark swimming.~~

OK The shark is swimming.

Nunca esqueça o is ou o are. Em português a gente diz “o tubarão nadando”, mas em inglês o verbo be é obrigatório.

16. QUESTIONS AND SHORT ANSWERS o painel bilíngue

WH- QUESTION What + is/are + subject + verb-ING?

EN To ask what someone is doing right now, start with What, then is or are, then the person, then the -ing verb.

PT Para perguntar o que alguém está fazendo agora, comece com What, depois is ou are, depois quem, e por último o verbo com -ing.

► What are they doing? — They're picking up trash.

YES/NO QUESTION Is/Are + subject + verb-ING?

EN For a yes/no question, put is or are at the front. No "do" and no "does" here!

PT Na pergunta de sim ou não, o is ou are vai para a frente. Aqui não entra "do" nem "does"!

► Are they cleaning the beach? — Yes, they are.

SHORT ANSWERS Yes, they are. / No, they aren't.

EN Answer with the same verb that started the question. Never repeat the -ing verb.

26. READING 1 Beatriz, 10 years old, Vitória - Espírito Santo, Brazil

The Beach Clean-Up at Praia da Costa

Hello! My name is Beatriz and I am ten years old. I live in Vitória, in Espírito Santo, Brazil. My city is next to the ocean and I love the beach.

Today is Sunday and my class is at Praia da Costa. We are having a beach clean-up! There are thirty children here and six teachers. Everybody has a big blue bag.

Look at my friends! Ana and Pedro are picking up plastic bottles. Miguel isn't picking up trash - he is making a movie about our clean-up. He wants to show the movie to all the school.

My teacher, Miss Carla, is talking to the people on the beach. She is telling them about ocean trash. "Plastic is very dangerous for sea animals," she says. "A turtle can think that a plastic bag is food."

I am not picking up bottles today. I am making a big poster. My poster says: OUR OCEAN IS NOT A TRASH CAN. Tomorrow the poster is going on the school wall.

At twelve o'clock we stop. Our bags are full! We count everything: 240 plastic bottles, 96 plastic bags and 52 straws. That is a lot of trash for one small beach.

Now the beach is clean and we are very happy. Next month we can do it again. Can you help your beach, too?

27. READING 2 a sea turtle tells her story

My name is Tuka

Hello. My name is Tuka and I am a sea turtle. I am forty years old - and that is young for a turtle!

I live in the Atlantic Ocean, near the coast of Brazil. I am swimming right now. The water is warm and blue and I am very happy.

I have a lot of friends here. The dolphins are jumping. The starfish are hiding in the sand. A big whale is singing far away. I love that sound.

But there is a problem in my home. There is a lot of plastic in my ocean.

Yesterday I was very hungry. I saw something white in the water. I thought: "That is a jellyfish! That is my favourite food!" But it wasn't a jellyfish. It was a plastic bag. Plastic bags aren't food. They are dangerous for me and for my family.

Then two children came in a small boat. They were picking up the plastic in the water. They took the white bag away. Thank you, children! You were fantastic.

Please help my ocean. Don't leave your trash on the beach. My family and I want a clean home.

28. READING 3 with Dr. Silva, marine biologist

A day at the Blue Ocean Aquarium

Good morning! My name is Dr. Silva and I am a marine biologist. I work at the Blue Ocean Aquarium. Come with me!

Here is our big tank. Look at the sharks! They are swimming very fast. Many people are afraid of sharks, but sharks aren't dangerous for people. They are very important for the ocean.

Now look down. Can you see the starfish? They are hiding in the sand. They have arms, but they don't have hands. And there - the crabs are walking on the rocks. They have legs and claws, but they don't have paws.

In this small tank we have seahorses. They aren't swimming. They are holding a plant with their tails. Baby seahorses are very, very small.

At two o'clock we feed the seals. They are always hungry! But right now they are sleeping. Please don't wake them up.

Every week, children from schools visit us. They ask a lot of questions. My favourite question is: "How can we help the oceans?"

My answer is always the same. Use less plastic. Pick up your trash. And tell other people about our beautiful ocean animals.

Ben's blog • March 3rd

Hello! I'm Ben and I'm 10 years old. Welcome to my blog! I like writing about the world around us. I hope you enjoy reading my blog.

Today, I want to talk about our oceans! There's a lot of trash in the ocean. This trash is dangerous for the animals! How can young people help? Let's find out!

Clean the oceans! Boyan Slat from the Netherlands has an Ocean Clean-Up project. His team picks up trash in the oceans. Then they recycle the trash. It's a great project!

Make a movie! Some schoolchildren from Hawaii, United States, are making a movie about trash in the ocean. There's a lot of plastic trash on the beaches in Hawaii. It's a terrible problem. It isn't safe for the animals in the ocean. This movie is a great way to tell people about ocean trash.

Go to a beach clean-up! It's Kids' Ocean Day in Los Angeles, United States. Look! There are 4,000 children at a beach clean-up! They're picking up trash. They're making a big picture of an animal on the beach, too.

All these young people are helping the oceans but everyone can help. And I want to help, too! Let's have a clean-up at our beach!
