E. GRAMMAR REFERENCE 1 the passive: simple present

Form am / is / are + past participle

EN To form the passive we use the verb to be + the past participle of the main verb.

PT Para formar a passiva usamos o verbo to be + o particípio passado do verbo principal.

► Javan rhinos ARE FOUND in Java.

Why use the passive? the action matters, not the doer

EN We use the passive when the important thing is the action, or when we do not know who does the action.

PT Usamos a passiva quando o importante é a ação, ou quando não sabemos quem faz a ação.

► Rhino horns ARE SOLD as medicine.

Active → passive the object becomes the subject

EN Active: We find different types of rhino in different parts of the world. Passive: Different types of rhino are found in different parts of the world.

PT Na ativa o sujeito faz a ação; na passiva o sujeito recebe a ação. O objeto da ativa vira o sujeito da passiva.

► People kill rhinos. → Rhinos ARE KILLED.

is or are? is + participle · are + participle

EN The verb to be agrees with the subject of the passive sentence.

PT O verbo to be concorda com o sujeito da frase passiva.

► A penguin IS SEEN. · Penguins ARE SEEN.

Negative & question isn't / aren't + participle · Is / Are ...?

EN For negatives, put not after the verb to be. For questions, put to be before the subject.

PT Negativa: not depois do to be. Pergunta: to be antes do sujeito.

► Pandas AREN'T HUNTED today. · ARE tigers FOUND in Africa?

COMMON ERROR · ERRO CLÁSSICO

~~X Javan rhinos are find in Java.~~

K. GRAMMAR REFERENCE 2 the passive: simple past

Form was / were + past participle

EN To form the simple past passive we use was or were + the past participle.

PT Passiva no passado simples: was/were + particípio passado.

► Bethan WAS SAVED by her pet rabbit.

was or were? was = singular · were = plural

► She WAS TAKEN to hospital. • Firefighters WERE CALLED.

Word order active ≠ passive

EN The order of the words is different from the active sentence. The object of the active sentence becomes the subject of the passive sentence.

PT A ordem das palavras muda: o objeto da ativa vira o sujeito da passiva.

► The snake ate a mouse. → A mouse WAS EATEN by the snake.

by + agent by = por

EN When we want to say who or what did the action, we use the word by.

PT Para dizer quem ou o que fez a ação usamos by.

► He WAS BITTEN BY the puma.

Negative, question & other tenses wasn't / weren't · Was / Were ...?

EN Negative: was or were + not + participle. Question: was or were before the subject. The passive works with different tenses — only the verb to be changes.

O. READING 1 Endangered animals — an information pamphlet

Endangered animals

1 • WHAT ARE ENDANGERED ANIMALS? Endangered animals are animals that could disappear from the world. Animals are called endangered when there are very few of them left. For example, there are only about 3,000 tigers left in the world. THEY can also be called endangered because there are fewer of them each year. For example, there are fewer giraffes in the world each year. When an animal disappears completely, it becomes extinct. The baiji river dolphin probably became extinct in 2002 — no one has seen one since then.

2 • HOW MANY ANIMALS ARE ENDANGERED? About 28 percent of all living things are endangered. THAT'S about 41,000 different types of animals and plants. THEY include animals like Asian elephants and blue whales, and also animals that are not as famous, like the Diana monkey. There are animals and plants in different parts of the world that we do not know about. Some of THESE may also be endangered.

3 • WHY DO ANIMALS BECOME ENDANGERED? Animals usually become endangered because the place where they live changes. For example, a place may become too hot or too cold. Or the animal may not have enough food. Often, THESE changes happen because of people. For example, when trees are cut down in the rainforest, there is less fruit for the monkeys to eat. Some endangered animals are killed for food. Others, like the gray parrot, are taken to be pets.

4 • WHAT CAN YOU DO TO HELP? You can learn more about the endangered animals where you live. If you know about THEM and understand why they are important, you can help to look after them. Perhaps you can volunteer to help protect the places where they live. Or maybe you can plant trees or flowers in your backyard to help them. Look online to find more ideas to help endangered animals!

SHE WAS SAVED ... BY HER PET RABBIT

Last Tuesday, Bethan was sleeping on her sofa. Suddenly, she was woken up by a loud noise. It was her pet rabbit, Jim Bob, hitting the ground with his back legs. Jim Bob smelled gas and ran out of the house with Bethan. But while she was running, she fell and hurt her leg.

Bethan was taken to the nearest hospital and she was kept there for the night. Firefighters visited her house and found that gas was coming from the oven. They helped Jim Bob and took him to an animal hospital to make sure he was OK. He was looked after until Bethan came home.

FAMILY DOG SAVES BOY FROM PUMA

Fifteen-year-old Rafael Cruz was saved by his pet dog Taco last Saturday. Rafael was cleaning the yard when a puma came out of the forest and ran at him. But Rafael was rescued when Taco jumped between them. Taco was bitten by the puma, but he wasn't badly hurt.

Q. READING 3 • CLIL Environmental Studies — The Hyacinth Macaw Project

The Hyacinth Macaw Project

WHEN DID THE PROJECT START? Hyacinth macaws became endangered in the 1980s, and Neiva Guedes started the project in 1990. When she saw these birds for the first time, she wanted to keep them safe.

WHY ARE THE BIRDS ENDANGERED? Hyacinth macaws are found in parts of Bolivia, Paraguay and Brazil. They make their nests in manduvi trees, and they eat nuts from the acuri palm tree. When these trees are cut down, the birds don't have a place to look after their eggs, and they don't have any food. Macaws are also sold as pets, although the police try to stop this because it is illegal. But they don't make good pets: they can live for 50–60 years, they can fly up to 56 kph, and they are very noisy!

WHAT DOES THE PROJECT DO? First, it looks after the nests in the Pantanal area of Brazil. It builds wooden boxes which the macaws use as nests, too. At the moment, there are nearly 200 wooden nest boxes. The project also helps the baby macaws before they are born. When the eggs are in danger from animals that want to eat them, chicken eggs are sometimes put in the nest instead. When the baby macaws are born, they are given food and then put back in their own nest a few days later.

Finally, the project teaches farmers that they shouldn't cut down the acuri or manduvi trees. Farmers are told to plant these trees so the macaws have food and somewhere to live.

HOW MANY BIRDS ARE THERE NOW? Before the project started, there were only about 1,500 macaws. Today, there are over 6,500 — but there's still a lot we need to do. And what can we do to help? Never buy these birds as pets. You can also donate money to the project.

GLOSSARY • conservation = conservação • nest = ninho • nuts = castanhas • to cut down = derrubar • illegal = ilegal • wooden = de madeira • to donate = doar • noisy = barulhento • instead = em vez disso • farmer = fazendeiro

R. EXTRA READING Good news for pandas — desafio ★★★

Good news for pandas

In the 1980s, pandas were endangered. There were only around 1,000 pandas left in the wild, and many people were worried. How could people help protect pandas?

First of all, one of the biggest problems was hunting. Many pandas were killed for their black-and-white fur. However, this was stopped by the Wildlife Protection Act in 1988. Today, pandas aren't hunted, but sometimes they are hurt by people hunting other animals.

Another problem was changes to where pandas live. Many new roads and railways were built in China's Yangtze Basin area. These stopped pandas from finding new bamboo forests.

Pandas eat between 10 and 40 kilograms of bamboo each day, so special forest areas were created for bamboo to grow. Today, people are not allowed to build in these areas.

Finally, another problem was cutting down trees to make space for farms and homes. This was stopped in some areas in 1998. This means that trees are not cut down where pandas live. Around 60 percent of wild pandas live in these special forest areas.

All of this is good news for pandas! Now, there are nearly 2,000 pandas in the wild, and they are not on the endangered list. However, we still need to protect pandas from hunting and building, and we need to continue finding ways to look after them. We now know that it is possible to help pandas, and that we can do the same with other endangered animals in the future.
