ATO 2 • COMPARE & CHOOSE

F. GRAMMAR REFERENCE 1 comparative adjectives

One-syllable adjectives adjective + -er + than

EN With short adjectives we add -er to the adjective and use than after it.

PT Adjetivos curtos: acrescenta -er e use than depois.

► Brazil is BIGGER THAN Bolivia.

Spelling changes big → bigger · nice → nicer · pretty → prettier

EN Some short adjectives double the last consonant. Adjectives ending in -e just add -r. Two-syllable adjectives ending in -y change the -y to -ier.

PT Alguns dobram a consoante final; terminados em -e só ganham -r; terminados em -y viram -ier.

► hot → hotter · nice → nicer · pretty → prettier

Longer adjectives more + adjective + than

EN With longer adjectives we do not add -er. We use more before the adjective.

PT Com adjetivos longos não se usa -er: use more antes do adjetivo.

► Her kitchen is MORE MODERN THAN our kitchen.

Irregular good → better · bad → worse

EN Good and bad are irregular. Never use more with them.

PT good e bad são irregulares — nunca use more com eles.

ATO 3 • HOMES AWAY FROM HOME

Q. READING 1 Will Sees the World — three vacation homes

Will Sees the World

I'm Will Wander, and I travel a lot with my family! Here are three of our favorite vacation homes.

OUTDOORS HOUSE ★★★★★☆ You can rent this vacation home for a week or a weekend. It's comfortable and not very expensive. There is a dining area outside, and the bedroom has a balcony where you can sit and enjoy the view of the beautiful swimming pool. When it's hot, jump in the pool and go for a swim.

ISLAND HOUSE ★★★★★☆ This place is incredible! It's a large, modern house on a quiet island. The bedroom has a big bed and an open view of the ocean. The living room is very comfortable, too: it has lots of sofas and chairs. It is the perfect place to relax. However, this place is very expensive. It's much more expensive than the Outdoors House, so we don't usually stay here.

HOUSE IN THE TREES ★★★★★★ This is my favorite place! It's a treehouse in the middle of a forest. There isn't a lot of furniture, only a bed and a table. We eat breakfast and dinner with other families in another building. It's fun to make new friends. The House in the Trees is smaller than the Island House, but it's even more beautiful. R. READING 2 • CULTURE Homes away from home

Homes away from home

All over the world, people live in traditional homes. In the United Kingdom, some families live on a houseboat. In Mongolia, people live in a yurt. In parts of Africa and the Middle East, people live in a Bedouin tent. Here are three more homes you can visit.

TURF HOUSES • ICELAND Turf houses in Iceland look like they are from a storybook! They have grass roofs and walls made from wood and brick. Most Icelanders don't live in turf houses now, but there are still some for visitors to stay in. These houses are an interesting part of the history of the country. If you enjoy adventures and you like history, a turf house is the perfect place for you.

TRULLI HOUSES • ITALY Stay in a trullo in Italy! Like hanok houses, trulli houses stay cool in the summer and warm in the winter. They are white with gray roofs. The roof is a circle made from stones. There are usually interesting signs painted on the roofs. Although these houses are centuries old, many visitors find them very comfortable.

HANOK HOUSES • SOUTH KOREA Visit South Korea and stay in a traditional hanok house. Hanok houses are made from stone, dirt and clay. They are still very popular — many South Koreans still live in them. These houses have special floors that keep the house warm in the winter and cool in the summer, so you can visit any time of year. Tiny Houses: Happy families

Tiny houses are popular. But why? Big houses are more comfortable than tiny houses. You can't live in a tiny house with a family of four. So why do people like tiny houses? Let's visit two families.

DAVID AND SARA David and Sara live in a tiny house on wheels. In the summer, they live in the mountains. In the winter, they live in the city because it's warmer there. Next summer, they want to live in the best place: the beach!

Their house is smaller than an apartment, but it's comfortable. They have a kitchen and a tiny bathroom. And they can work in any place that has an Internet connection. If David and Sara have children one day, they can buy a bigger house, but for now they like their tiny-house life.

SIMONE, GRANDMA LIA AND GRANDPA MAX Simone lives with her parents and her two brothers in a house with a big yard. Grandma Lia and Grandpa Max live in a tiny house in the yard. Why? Because Lia and Max want to live independently, but they are old, and they need help from their family.

Simone loves her grandparents, and she helps her grandma cook dinner. Simone's father helps with the shopping, and Simone's mom helps with the cleaning. With a tiny house in the yard, the two families are closer than in different houses in the city. And the grandparents' tiny house is new, so it's more modern than Simone's house!
