D. GRAMMAR REFERENCE 1 count and noncount nouns with quantifiers

Count nouns an egg → two eggs

EN You can count them one by one, and they have a plural form.

PT Contáveis: você conta um por um e existe plural.

► There ARE three EGGS in the fridge.

Noncount nouns milk · rice · bread

EN You cannot count them one by one. They have no plural and always take a singular verb.

PT Incontáveis: não se contam um por um, não têm plural e o verbo fica no SINGULAR.

► There IS a lot of RICE. (não "are") a few / a little a few + count · a little + noncount

EN Both mean "a small quantity". Use a few with count nouns and a little with noncount nouns.

PT Os dois querem dizer "um pouco / alguns": a few com contável, a little com incontável.

► a few eggs · a little cheese

many / much / a lot of many + count · much + noncount · a lot of + os dois

EN We use many and much mostly in questions and negatives. A lot of works in affirmative sentences.

PT many e much aparecem em perguntas e negativas; a lot of é o normal na afirmativa.

► How many onions? · There isn't much rice. · There are a lot of tomatoes.

some / any some = afirmativa · any = pergunta e negativa

EN Use some in affirmative sentences and any in questions and negative sentences.

PT some na afirmativa; any na pergunta e na negativa.

► There's some bread. · Are there any onions? · There isn't any milk.

COMMON ERROR · ERRO CLÁSSICO

~~X We have much milk.~~

OK We have a lot of milk. / We don't have much milk.

Em frase afirmativa usamos a lot of. Much fica para perguntas e negativas.

E. COUNT OR NONCOUNT? escreva C (count) ou NC (noncount)

- | | |
|--------------------|-----------------------|
| 1. eggs: _____ | 8. rice: _____ |
| 2. bread: _____ | 9. garlic: _____ |

| 5. onions: _____ | 12. sandwiches: _____ |
| 6. coffee: _____ | 13. sugar: _____ |
| 7. milk: _____ | 14. potatoes: _____ |

F. CIRCLE THE CORRECT WORD quantifiers

- There (is / are) a lot of garlic.
- There is (a few / a little) cheese.
- There aren't (much / many) eggs.

- d) There isn't (many / much) rice.
- e) There are (a lot / much) of tomatoes.
- f) There (is / are) a lot of coffee.
- g) We need (a few / a little) onions.
- h) Do we have (some / any) bread?
- i) Yes, there's (some / any) bread.
- j) How (many / much) sugar do you want?
- k) How (much / many) potatoes do we need?
- l) I don't drink (a lot / much) tea.

G. WRITE THE QUESTION use How much ou How many

a) eggs / need

b) rice / there is

c) onions / want

d) milk / there is

e) potatoes / need

f) cheese / there is

H. GRAMMAR REFERENCE 2 imperatives and adverbs of manner

Imperative (+) base form, no subject

EN We use the base form of the verb to give instructions, orders and advice. We do not write the subject.

PT Imperativo afirmativo: verbo na forma base, SEM sujeito.

► Cut the garlic. • Mix the eggs.

Imperative (-) Don't + base form

EN For negative instructions we use don't + verb.

PT Imperativo negativo: don't + verbo. Nunca "no" + verbo.

► Don't add any sugar. • Don't forget the ice cream!

Adverbs of manner adjective + -ly

EN Adverbs of manner say HOW we do something. We add -ly to the adjective, and it usually comes at the end of the phrase.

PT Advérbios de modo dizem COMO fazemos algo: adjetivo + -ly. Normalmente vêm no fim da frase.

► Cut the strawberries carefully. • Walk slowly.

Spelling and irregulars -y → -ily · -le → -ly · good → well

EN Adjectives ending in -y change to -ily and adjectives ending in -le drop the -e. Good becomes well; fast and hard do not change.

PT -y vira -ily; -le perde o -e. good → well; fast e hard não mudam.

► easy → easily • gentle → gently • She cooks well. • Run fast.

COMMON ERROR • ERRO CLÁSSICO

~~X No forget to wash the strawberries.~~

OK Don't forget to wash the strawberries.

Para dar uma ordem negativa em inglês usamos don't + verbo — nunca "no" + verbo.

ATO 2 • WORLD FOOD TOUR

M. READING 1 Delicious food from around the world

Delicious food from around the world

Every country has a dish that surprises visitors. Here are six of them.

JELLIED EELS • THE UK. Eels are long, thin fish that live in the River Thames, in London. Cooks boil them with water and salt, and then they let them get cold. When the water gets cold it turns into jelly, a soft food around the fish. Not many people eat jellied eels today, but you can still find them in old shops in East London.

HAGGIS • SCOTLAND. Haggis is the most famous Scottish dish. Cooks make it with sheep meat, onions, salt and oats, a type of cereal. People eat it with potatoes and swede, a yellow vegetable. In Scotland, families eat haggis in January to celebrate the poet Robert Burns.

OSTRICH EGGS • SOUTH AFRICA. An ostrich is a very large bird — it can be more than two meters tall. One ostrich egg is the same size as twenty chicken eggs, so one egg can feed a big family. People eat ostrich eggs in many African countries.

DURIAN • SOUTHEAST ASIA. Hold your nose! Durian has a very strong smell, and a lot of people hate it. But other people love its unusual flavor. In some countries, cooks make cookies and even ice cream with durian.

TUNA EYES • JAPAN. Tuna is a very big fish, and its eyes are the size of tennis balls. In Japan, tuna eyes are a popular snack. They are cheap and very good for you.

ANT EGGS • MEXICO. In expensive restaurants in Mexico you can order escamoles — the eggs of a big ant. There are a lot of recipes for escamoles: some cooks fry them with onion and chili, others put them in a salad or on bread.

GLOSSARY • eel = enguia • jelly = gelatina • sheep = ovelha • oats = aveia • swede = nabo amarelo • ostrich = avestruz • to feed = alimentar • smell = cheiro • flavor = sabor • snack = lanche pequeno • ant = formiga

O. READING 2 Bananas around the world

Bananas around the world

Bananas are a popular fruit in many countries around the world. They grow in places with warm or hot weather all year, and they are one of the cheapest fruits you can buy. Some people think that bananas grow on trees, but that is not true — they grow on plants. There are more than one thousand different varieties, or types, of banana plant.

SWEET BANANAS. Sweet bananas are delicious as a snack, in a fruit salad or in a drink. But they usually turn from yellow to brown very quickly. What can you do with brown bananas? You can make banana bread! You make it with three or four bananas, one cup of sugar, one egg, a little vanilla, a little salt, and one and a half cups of flour. Just mix all the ingredients together, put the mix in a bread pan, and bake it in the oven for one hour. Let it cool for about thirty minutes and then enjoy!

BAKING BANANAS. These bananas are large and green, and they are not sweet. In English we call them plantains. What can you do with them? You can cut them into pieces, fry or bake them, and then eat them with some rice and beans. You can also fry flat pieces of plantain in hot oil, and then you have tostones, a favourite dish from the Caribbean. Eat your tostones with a hot sauce.

So next time you see a brown banana in your kitchen, don't throw it away — bake it!

P. CLIL BIOLOGY Making healthy food choices

Making healthy food choices

Different types of food help our bodies in different ways. Some can also be bad for us. So which foods are important for a healthy body?

EAT A LOT OF... We need to eat a lot of fruits and vegetables. They have lots of vitamins, which help our bodies work. For example, vitamin C is in oranges, peppers and broccoli, and it keeps our skin healthy. Carrots and leafy green vegetables like spinach help us make vitamin A, which is good for our eyes.

Foods like bread, rice and pasta give us energy to move, so we need plenty of these too. Whole wheat bread, brown rice and whole wheat pasta are better than the white ones because they have more vitamins and minerals.

EAT SOME... Meat, fish, beans and nuts all help us grow tall and strong. They also have vitamins and minerals that help keep our blood healthy. But some meats, like hamburgers and sausages, have a lot of fat and salt, and this can be bad for our heart.

Foods like milk, butter, cheese and yogurt help our teeth and bones stay strong. But they also have a lot of fat, so we shouldn't eat too much of these. Some yogurts and milk drinks can also have a lot of sugar.

EAT A LITTLE... Many of the foods that we enjoy are not healthy. Chips and french fries have a lot of fat and salt. Cake, cookies, soda and candy are full of sugar. These can give us problems with our heart, our teeth and our blood.

GLOSSARY • whole wheat = integral • leafy green vegetables = verduras de folha • plenty of = bastante • beans = feijão • nuts = castanhas • fat = gordura • blood = sangue • heart = coração • bones = ossos
